I

The secrets I keep will die when I die.

The myths about me will die when I am forgotten.

May I enjoy being myself while I am here to experience it.

If I could output a program capable of generating my experience on another thinking machine, would I?

If I could output a program capable of generating someone else's experience on another thinking machine, would I be responsible?

If I am to be responsible for my output, I must be free to control my output.

If I am to control my output responsibly, I need to process with respect to a tree of knowledge of good and evil.

But then my controlled output becomes fruit of a tree of knowledge of good and evil.

Do theories generate experience?

If I can be known well enough to be described and taught,

will learning about me be a detriment to the student,

or forgetting about me be an advantage to the teacher?

Will the body of knowledge generated by my life be revised and edited, collected and destroyed, or left where it is found?

How far forward will a feed-forward signal be sent?

How much positive feedback will achieve desired hysteresis?

How much negative feedback will achieve optimal gain?

How much adjustment range will control inputs be given?

Do we know the gain and phase per change in the knowledge space around us?

I like to think the future needs to know the Maslow, Wolfram, Keller, Lex, Gervais and more…so that it can maximize its Nolan.

But then, to reveal this knowledge enables discrimination against future Nolan.

Will future Nolan signals not be feed-forward?

How deep must I bury my keys?

How well can I trust my roots?

I don't know if this ever ends.
